

ABSTRACT

The aim of the research study was to Examine the perceptions of students on the use of condoms in higher learning institutions a case study of the University of Dodoma (UDOM).The objectives of the study were to evaluate the attitudes and perceptions of students on the use of condoms in higher learning institutions specifically at the University of Dodoma (UDOM), The study applied mixed methods involving the use of both qualitative and quantitative techniques, Purposive sampling was used to select sample of 100 respondents. Questionnaires and interviews were also used as data collection tools to assist in collecting relevant information from the study area. The data analysis was done through the use of content analysis for qualitative data and Statistical Package for Social Science (SPSS) for quantitative data analysis and later presented through tables and charts. The researcher was guided by ethical consideration while conducting the research study.

LIBRARY
INSTITUTE OF ACCOUNTANCY
ARUSHA