

ABSTRACT

This research study is on Assessment of Risk management on Non-Government organizations, World vision Tanzania. The study developed because of problem, which faced many NGO in Tanzania, Different donors decommit their budget, number of NGO they are not performing well due to decrease in budget time to time. Therefore, the researcher decide to assess risk management to non-government organizations. How does the non-government organizations manage their risk case study Worldvision Tanzania. Why World vision Tanzania? This is among of the biggest NGO in Tanzania where by the researcher obtain the data which represent other NGO. In addition, is the place where the Researcher is working so it simplifying the process due to time given for this study. Here researcher review the risk register, review the control that the organization have, review those strategies that help the organization to manage the risk and lastly check on the way the risk are monitored. During the study process the researcher is limited with time, the time allocated for this study is very limited but the researcher tried as much as possible to do the best.

The researcher decide to use the secondary data method for the purpose of this study, this method used is because of the reliability of the information given from World vision Tanzania. The information is very reliable and accurate, which gives the researcher more confidence to proceed with findings. Using this method help the researcher to explore risk associated to NGO and hence suggest the method for control. The study reveal different findings where by fourteen risk categories obtained out of all five of them appear to be at higher rate. Two under finance and one under legal regulatory and compliance. Therefore, the findings of this research will help the policy maker who propose the control to increase more additional measures, which will be more effective, and efficiency on risk management process to the NGO.

Lastly, In order for donors to have enough confidence to the organization, which will end up providing enough money to support the poor community then Risk management, is one of the key element in non-government organization.
